Dear Mr./Ms.<Recruiter Name> (or Dear Hiring Manager),

I'm writing to apply for a full-time position at [Firm Name] with a strong preference for the Chicago office. Through my research of your firm, as well as conversations with [Firm Name] consultants in my network and at recruiting events, I believe certain characteristics of [Firm Name] are a good fit for my strengths and values. [Firm's Name] pragmatic approach toward solving client issues with a meaningful, measurable impact resonates with me. For instance, in my conversations I learned of the "tied economics" approach, a sensible and innovative way to tie client performance to the firm's compensation.

In my current role as a planning analyst supporting the Global Strategic Competencies Group, I conducted research and developed innovative practices and recommended a strategy for implementing Open Innovation frameworks within my organization. While studying the internal strategy and gathering external best practices, I gained firsthand knowledge of the challenges of operating within a global firm. My role in this project, much like a consulting engagement, provided me with the opportunity to impact [Current Company's] global innovation strategy by examining their global strengths and capabilities, while also ensuring my recommendations were instantly implementable and results driven. During this project I worked directly with several top executives, helping me understand a number of challenges that an organization such as [Current Company] faces in today's economic environment.

Both my personal and professional experiences have helped define my greatest strengths: initiative, tenacity, and a willingness to face new challenges. In addition to my work with [Current Company], before coming to Booth I established and operated my own fashion accessories export business. Growing this venture instilled in me analytical, leadership, teamwork, and people skills that I believe are a great asset for a consultant. I also hold values aligned with [Firm's Name], as over the course of my career I have learned that sometimes taking the less "popular" position is necessary to secure the right solution for the client—as being candid and fact-based can inspire the necessary forms of trust. After assuming a leadership role in my own business and with [Current Company], I am excited to take this next step and join [Firm Name] in order to build on my passion for helping diagnose and implement solutions for people and organizations.

I have attached a copy of my resume for your review, and I would welcome the opportunity to further demonstrate my interest in the position by discussing my skills and background with you in more detail at your convenience.

Thank you for your consideration of my application, and I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

<Your Name>
